How enterprises are struggling to identify, monitor and secure unmanaged and IoT devices in their business.

67% have experienced a security incident related to unmanaged or IoT devices

74% feel their current security controls and practices are not adequate for unmanaged and IoT devices

84% say IoT devices are more vulnerable than corporate-managed computers

80% know they need to address unmanaged and IoT security policies, but aren’t sure where to start

67% have experienced a security incident related to unmanaged or IoT devices

74% feel their current security controls and practices are not adequate for unmanaged and IoT devices

84% say IoT devices are more vulnerable than corporate-managed computers

80% know they need to address unmanaged and IoT security policies, but aren’t sure where to start

Visibility is number one for me, if you can’t see it, you can’t protect it. Then only are you able to make some smart decisions about what you should and shouldn’t allow the device to do, apply policy to that, and make it more intelligent.”

CISO, US Airline

Learn more: armis.com/forrester